TWENTY-EIGHTH ANNUAL COOPERATIVE SPRING MIGRATION REPORT

The migration and occurrence list for the spring of 1952 was made possible by the concerted interest of the members of the Nebraska Ornithologists' Union. This record is the result of cooperative bird watching and reporting. The spring migration reports represent many hours of field work and will eventually fit together to form a long time research project. These observations accurately made and honestly reported will be of great value to future Nebraska ornithologists.

The 1951 spring migration reported listed 259 species and subspecies from fifteen areas in Nebraska. This year 263 species and subspecies were reported from 26 areas in Nebraska. In addition reports were received of nine species of such rarity that the editors felt that they could not be included in the main listing, because no supplemental information (in the form of a general note) was provided as requested in the general instructions sent to each cooperator at the beginning of the migration year.

The following table shows how many years the twenty-six areas have been cooperating and the number of species and subspecies reported in 1951 and 1952:

Area	Years of Participation	Number of Birds Reported
		1951	1952

BOOK REVIEW

THE BIRDS ARE YOURS.—By Robert S. Lemmon and Don Eckelberry. The Macmillan Company. New York, N. Y., 1951: 121 pp. $2.25
OUR AMAZING BIRDS.—By Robert S. Lemmon and Don R. Eckelberry. Doubleday & Company, Inc., Garden City, N. Y., 1952: 239 pp. $3.95.

These interesting compilations of facts about birds are somewhat similar in their general approach; however, the first (and considerably smaller) work deals largely in generalities applicable to many species, whereas the second discusses in some detail 102 species of common and uncommon birds. Both books include discussions of behavior patterns, nesting habits, feeding habits, etc. There is surprisingly little duplication between the two books, each more or less supplementing the other. The illustrations in The Birds Are Yours are well done in pen and ink sketches and those in Our Amazing Birds are superb black and white wash drawings. Both books are better-than-average examples of what may (and should) be done in a popular approach to a discussion of birds and their habits. In the reviewer's opinion Our Amazing Birds holds the interest longer and is somewhat better done than The Birds Are Yours.—H.E.B.
